

ROBERTO CARCAMO

FULLSTACK DEVELOPER

Available to start work immediately

PROFILE

I'm a full-stack developer with a strong focus on building reliable and user-friendly applications. I'm committed to my work and take responsibility for delivering quality results, always paying close attention to detail. I enjoy collaborating with others and have experience working in team environments where communication and shared goals are important. I value learning from teammates and contributing to a positive and productive workflow.

I am also interested in modern development practices, including CI/CD and continuous improvement throughout the development lifecycle. I'm open to contributing to open-source projects and learning from the wider developer community. In the long term, I hope to grow within a stable team and contribute to a company where I can continue developing my skills while helping build meaningful and well-designed digital products.
